REGISTRATION

In this section you'll see the many faces of the campus and many personalities. Some pictures only need a glance to bring back memories as well as laughter and smiles.

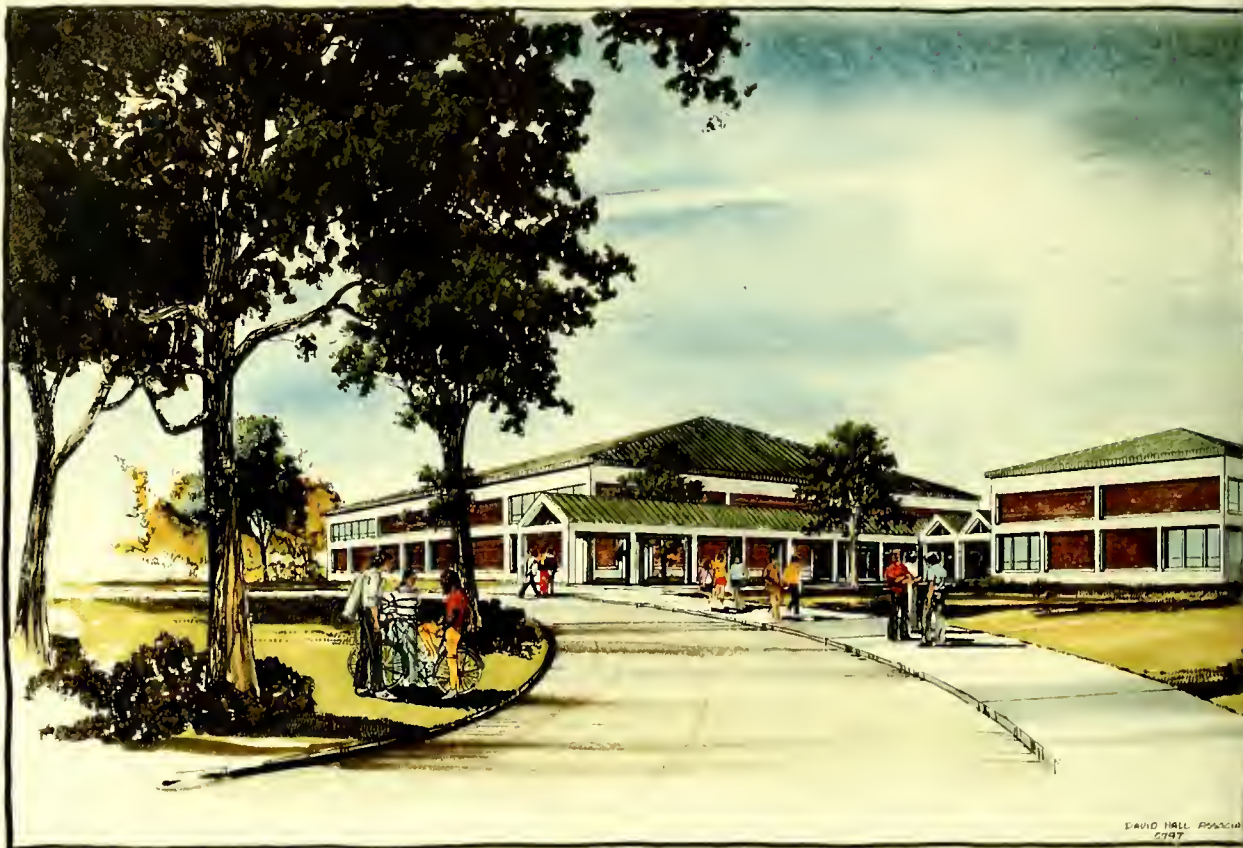

FINALLY!

We've waited for what seems like forever for the shimmering and sparkling powder to fall upon the campus and enhance its beauty. It was about time.

A capitol campaign to raise $3.5 million for a physical activities center was announced on Monday, Oct. 13, at a press conference held in the board room of Homer Administration Building. Dr. M. Elton Hendricks, president of the college, made the announcement along with Ike O'Hanlon, chairman of the Board of Trustees; Louis Spilman, chairman of the Board of Trustees' Development Committee; Gene Clayton, vice president for development; and Tom Austin, athletic director.

The fund-raising efforts are being headed by O'Hanlon, Spilman and Clayton. Hendricks said that a total of $1.3 million has already been raised from members of the Board of Trustees.

"This is a facility we have needed at Methodist for a number of years," Hendricks said. "Our present gymnasium was constructed for temporary use in 1963." A metal structure dubbed the "warehouse" by Methodist students, the facility suffers from poor heating and air conditioning, a leaking roof, inadequate dressing rooms, no office space and limited seating capacity. The new physical activities center will include a gymnasium with a seating capacity of 1,500, an Olympic-size swimming pool, racquetball and handball courts, weight room, sauna, classrooms, dressing rooms and administrative offices.

At the annual meeting of the Methodist College Alumni Association held during Homecoming, the official announcement of the campaign and new PAC was made to the alumni.

Clayton and Gwen Sykes, director of special projects and cheerleading/jazz dance coach, reported on the "Distinguished Monarch" alumni solicitation. The "Distinguished Monarch" campaign is an effort to solicit pledges of $1,000 from each alumnus, faculty and staff member, and other friends of the college. Sykes noted that of 112 alumni contacted, 105 had made pledges, some of them over $1,000. Coupled with some early gifts from faculty and staff members, the fund had approximately $140,000 in pledges on that date. Clayton announced at the press conference that solicitation of the faculty and staff began that day.

He said solicitation in the community was to begin Thursday, Oct. 16. The college hosted breakfasts on both Wednesday and Thursday mornings at Highland Country Club where plans for the facility were presented to several chief executive officers from the business and industrial community in the Fayetteville/Cumberland County area.

Clayton said solicitation from the alumni will continue through early spring and national foundations will be targeted next fall.

Hendricks said the campaign, which will continue through fall 1987, is expected to generate $1.5 million from trustees, $800,000 from alumni, $700,000 from the community and $500,000 from national foundations.

Construction is expected to get underway next fall with a completion date of fall 1988. Hendricks said preliminary plans have targeted the site of the present tennis courts for the new facility. The current gym would be converted to a warehouse or a theater for the drama department, he added. "It's a fairly spacious location, and we may end up doing two or three things with it."

He noted that timing of the campaign was based on financial stability in the community and good response to a feasibility study.

"We're going to build this athletic facility!" said O'Hanlon, a long-time booster of the college. "We're going to make it regardless of what happens. We have needed this gymnasium for many years. I know the people of Fayetteville and Cumberland County are for it, and we're going to go ahead and make it."

Austin, who is also an assistant professor of physical education and coach of the Monarchs' baseball team, commented on the positive impact the new PAC will have on the overall athletic program and the boost it will give to athletic recruiting. He said although our outdoor teams are recognized on a national level, a lack of adequate facilities has handicapped our indoor sports.

FACULTY, STAFF and ADMINISTRATION

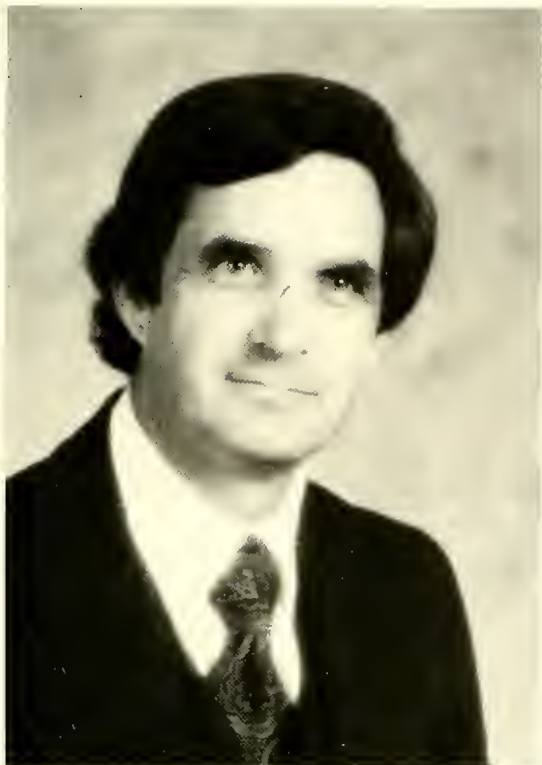

President Dr. M. Elton Hendricks

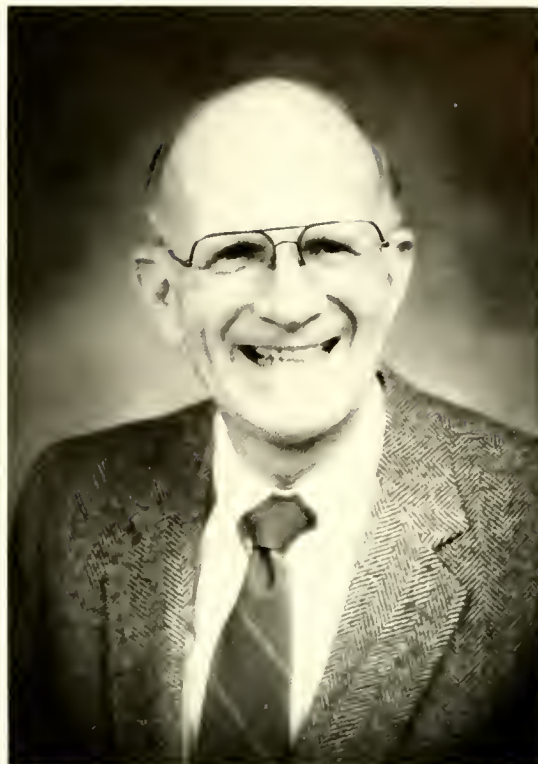

President Hendricks received a 1987 Marquee Award at Fayetteville's Dogwood Festival Ball April 4. Dr. Hendricks was cited as the Outstanding Educator in Fayetteville, in recognition of his many accomplishments at MC. The president was nominated by Dr. Sadler. In a four-page letter, she praised Dr. Hendricks for his progressive but unassuming management style and for his unwavering dedication to the principle that "nothing is impossible."

MORAVIAN LOVE FEAST

The Rev. Phil Baugess, a Moravian minister from Winston-Salem, was the guest pastor at the annual Moravian Love Feast, Dec. 7 in the Hensdale Chapel on campus. The Love Feast embodies the traditional Moravian worship service with fellowship demonstrated through sharing bread, coffee and a candle-lighting.

SHARING AND CARING

SYC Day

Loyal MC students joined forces Saturday, March 21, for the second annual "SYC" (Show You Care) Day. This is the day when students, faculty and staff join together in an effort to beautify some area of the campus.

This year's project focused on the Trustees Building. Activities included landscaping the front, back and inner court yard, and painting the inside of the building.

Like last year, the first 144 people to arrive for work received a free t-shirt, with a silkscreen design describing the events of the day. Lunch was provided for those who "showed they care." During the lunch break, live music entertained the troops.

7th Annual Fine Arts Festival

"America Alive! The 1920's" was the theme of the seventh annual Methodist College Fine Arts Festival March 27-April 12. Most of the events coincided with Fayetteville's Dogwood Festival April 3-12.

Many of the 16 events planned for this year's festival were "firsts" for the college and Fayetteville. Examples were: the premiere of a Lee Yopp play about North Carolina playwright Paul Green; an Art Deco Fashion Show; mixed media programs on jazz, old-time radio, and 1920s architecture; an outdoor production of Eugene O'Neill's Pulitzer-prize-winning play "Beyond the Horizon;" and a "Roaring Twenties Puppet Show."

Most of the festival's 16 events were free to the public. Exceptions were: "Paul Green's Celebration of Man" (the Southern Writers' Symposium) "Coppelia" (the Dance Theatre of Fayetteville's Spring Recital); and "Ballet Folclorico -- the National Ballet of Mexico" (a Community Concerts presentation).

The Art Deco Tea and Fashion Show Mar. 29 included vintage clothes from Period Pieces of Fayetteville, with music furnished by the Spring Lake Rhythm Band. The Economics & Business Club and Belk staged a "Dress for Success Fashion Show" Wednesday, April 8.

Tom Hennessy, a faculty member at Fayetteville State University, lectured on "The Roots of Jazz in the Jazz in Age" April 5, using part of his vast collection of jazz recordings.

Hope Mills resident John Wallace presented a program Mar. 30, entitled "Who Knows What Fun Can Be Had While Listening to Old Time Radio?"

Fayetteville architect Mason Hicks delivered an illustrated lecture on 1920's architecture April 6, entitled "From Bauhaus to Our House."

Teresa Poole Akamatsu, a 1979 graduate of Methodist College, gave a piano recital on Mar. 29. She is currently working on her doctoral degree in piano performance at the Cincinnati College Conservatory of Music.

Methodist College students who were leading players in the Theatre Department's production of Eugene O'Neill's "Beyond the Horizon" April 2-4 include Rob Metzger, Mark Tygh, Rick Lane, Richard Briggs Jr., and Charles Passacantando. Dr. Jack Peyrouse directed the play.

Eleanor Howell, a retired Methodist College faculty member, created a special "Roaring Twenties Puppet Show" for the festival. Seven theatre students served as puppeteers for the April 8 presentation. Mrs. Howell directed and Fran Mizell assisted.

Art Deco banners were done by Ms. Foti-Soublet, Mrs. Hinson and the rest of the art department.

"Paul Green's Celebration of Man" was the subject of the fifth annual Southern Writer's Symposium held Mar. 27-28 at Methodist College.

A special feature of the 1987 symposium was the Mar. 28 premiere of an original play about the Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright entitled "Listen to My Song." Written and directed by Lee Yopp, artistic director of the Ft. Bragg Playhouse, the play starred Leonard McLeod as Paul Green.

When the Paul Green Theatre opened on the UNC-Chapel Hill campus, Yopp was asked to direct the opening play, "Native Son." Several years ago, he directed a Ft. Bragg Playhouse production of Green's play "Hymn to the Rising Sun." Supported by a grant from the Paul Green Foundation, Yopp took a leave of absence from his Fort Bragg post to write the play about Green.

Paul Green is considered the "father of outdoor drama" in America. From 1931-1978, he produced 15 symphonic dramas, six of which will be staged during the 1987 summer season. The dramas still in production include: The Lost Colony - Manteo, NC (celebrating its 50th anniversary this summer), Cross and Sword - St. Augustine, FL., The Stephen Foster Story - Bardstown, Ky., Texas - Canyon, TX., Trumpet in the Land - Dover, OH., and The Lone Star - Galveston, Tx.

"Paul Green's Celebration of Man" included lectures by 12 guest scholars who either knew Green or have studied his work, two films, special music from Green's symphonic dramas (presented by the college chorus), and the premiere of Yopp's play. Scholars and friends who spoke about Green include: Sue L. Kimball, Janet Green Catlin, Rhoda Wynn, Frances R. Kestler, Paul Wilson, John Ehle, Shelby Stephenson, Laurence G. Avery, Glenda E. Gill, Ed Devaney, Rev. W.W. Finlator, and Lynn Veatch Sadler.

"Paul Green's Celebration of Man" was arranged by Dr. Sue Kimball, professor of English at Methodist College. She met Green the week before he died in 1981, while he was attending a play at Fort Bragg. Green was born and reared in neighboring Harnett County, less than 30 miles from the Methodist College campus.

The Paul Green symposium and play were made possible by grants from the Grassroots Fund of the Art Council of Fayetteville/Cumberland County, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Broyhill Foundation, the Adele M. Thomas Trust, Methodist College, and the Paul Green Foundation.

Methodist's First Historian-in-Residence

When the academic year 86-87 began, Mrs. Mary Lynn McCree Bryan, nationally known authority on Jane Adams, became Methodist's first Historian-in-residence.

Mrs. Bryan holds a BA in history from Alabama Polytechnic Institute; an MA in history from the University of Illinois; and an MBA from the University of Chicago. She has worked for the Illinois State Archives and the Civil War Centennial Commission of Illinois, headed the Manuscripts Collection of the library at the University of Illinois-Chicago, was Curator of the Hull House from 1966-83, and has been a member of the Dept. of History at Duke University. She has published and lectured widely and is currently the editor of the Jane Adams papers.

At Methodist, Mrs. Bryan consulted with the Department of History and the Social Science Division and lectured on such topics as "Women and War"; "Women in the Colonial Period"; "Women and Reform Movements, 1800-1860"; "Jane Adams and Progressivism"; "The Women's Right Movement in the U.S., 1870-1986"; "Jane Adams, Hull House and Social Work"; and "Using Computers in Historical Research."

The women's soccer team enjoyed very successful year finishing with an overall record of 13-4-2 and an undefeated record in the conference. Playing such Division I powerhouses as NC State and William and Mary, the Monarchs were the only team from the region to earn a berth in the Division III National Championship. The Monarch team was ranked as high as number five nationally before falling to number two ranked St. Mary's of Minnesota in sudden death penalty kicks. Individual honors were also earned by the Monarchs who placed seven players on the all-Conference team, three players on the Regional team and Methodist's first two women's soccer All-Americans, Brenda McKimens and Lori Silvasy. Head Coach Joe Pereira also received conference coach of the year for the third straight year and Regional coach of the year to cap a very productive season.

The Methodist College Cheerleaders again captured top national honors as the top-ranked NCAA Division III squad in the nation in the 1987 Ford National Collegiate Cheerleading Championships. In the small college division (Division 2) which includes all NCAA Division III, NCAA Division II, NAIA and JUNCO college squads, the Monarch cheerleaders finished 8th in the nation from a field of 209. The 1987 National Top Ten plaque celebrates that honor and joins all other Methodist College national athletic awards.

After a season of endless practice, Homecoming in the rain, basketball games in the Warehouse, countless clinics and conferences, public appearances, the cheerleaders competition in hopes of regaining their twice-held title for UNC-G. Their loss of that 1987 DIAC title by 2 points to UNC-G remains the only blemish on a successful and productive year.

The Monarch cheerleaders were led by captains Anthony Westbrooks (junior) and Susie Cox (sophomore).

a 2nd team selection on both teams. The team set several records including most goals in a season (40), most goals in a game (11) and most team shut-outs (9).

The 1986-87 basketball season ended with a disappointing 2-23 record. Although close in several games with a 1-point loss to UNC-G and a point loss to Greensboro, youth and inexperience was a telling factor for the Monarchs.

The team was led in scoring and rebounding by Quinton Harshaw, who averaged 19.7 points per game and 6.3 rebounds. Billy Lamb provided help inside by scoring 9.7 points per game and averaging 4.9 rebounds. The 2nd leading rebounder was Joe Frana who averaged 5.2 rebounds. The addition of the 3-point play added excitement to college basketball. David Carrier led the Monarchs in this category by hitting 24 of 53 3-pointers for a very respectable 45.2 percentage.

Quinton Harshaw's averages earned him second team honors for the Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Golf

The women's golf team entered this season as the defending Division III National Champion with 2 All-Americans, Holly Anderson and Joy Bonhurst returning. The team placed as high as 5th in this year's tournaments, always competing against Division I and II schools. Holly Anderson finished the regular season with the lowest team average, placing 3rd in the Seahawk Azalea Invitational and 6th in the Longwood and Yale Invitational.

Methodist College found itself in a do-or-die situation this week in the National Golf Coaches Association Division III women's national championship.

Most of the teams entered five players. And out of the five, the best four rounds were counted each day in the team competition.

Only four Methodist players made the trip to Whitewater, Wis., where the tournament was played on the par 72, 5,700-yard Evergreen Country Club course.

"Most of the other teams had five players. They could pick their best four," Methodist sophomore Holly Anderson said. "We went into the tournament knowing that we had to use our four scores. We knew we had to play our best."

The defending champion Monarchs were equal to the task.

Methodist dominated the field for the second straight year, posting a three-round team total of 1,072 to finish a whopping 36 strokes ahead of runner-up Loras College of Dubuque, Iowa.

Anderson, who shot rounds of 76-77-77 for a 54-hole total of 230, successfully defended her Division III crown.

"It feels real good," said the 20-year-old native of Cumberland, Maine. "I improved my score from last year. It ended up being closer than last year. It was not a ho-hum thing."

Amherst's Nicole Danforth gave Anderson a good run during the tournament and was only one shot behind the Monarch player entering Wednesday's final round. But Danforth ballooned to an 80 in the final round as Anderson won the Division III title by four strokes.

Methodist's Joy Bonhurst came in third at 79-245. Also playing key roles for the Monarchs were freshmen Melissa Dziabo (91-267) and Jennifer Desautels (93-294). Anderson, Bonhurst and Dziabo earned All-American honors.

Because this tournament-tested corp is so young, the Monarchs should be in good shape for years to come.

Wiggs, in her first season as coach, took over the club from Darcy Wilson. But a question that looms is how can an institution with a full-time student enrollment of just 1,100 come to dominate an NCAA tournament like the Monarchs have done the last two years. In 1986, Methodist won the Division III crown by "90-some strokes," Wiggs said. Methodist has won the event two of the four times it has been held as a separate Division III tournament.

"We have a good coach and good coaching staff," Anderson said. "Methodist has a good golf program. And there are a lot of good golfers on campus."

Wiggs gives much of the credit to Methodist men's golf coach Jim Suttie. "We work with Dr. Suttie at Methodist," said Wiggs, who also serves as the women's basketball coach. "He's very knowledgeable of the golf swing."

Leading the Monarchs this past season were sophomores Brian Cole, Gregg Coleman and Gerald Davis.

Brian Cole, the team captain, shared the lead spot most of the season with freshman Tim Kelly.

Adding to the team were a host of freshmen: Brian Robinson, Tim McDonald, Bobby Booth, Dan Mannix, George Span and Ernie Pitts. This year's addition of the Running Monarchs almost made Methodist history by beating Christopher Newport College, but fell 8 points short and had to settle for 2nd. The Monarch future under Jeff DeGraw does look bright. Special thanks to Reed Swanson for all his support and help.

Senior Karen Grant concluded an outstanding year and career by winning the NCAA Division III triple jump with a record jump of 41'-1/2". Her leap broke her own national mark of 40-6. It was her 3rd event at the National meet as she also made All-American in the long jump and 100 m dash. In the long jump Grant broke the national record with a jump of 19-4 3/4, then was beaten. She placed 4th in the 100 dash. Other MC representatives at Nationals were Danielle Baker, who place 12th in the 100 hurdles with a personal best of 14.9. She also ran the 200 but didn't advance to the finals. The Monarch 400 relay placed 9th overall.

Tennis in 1987 proved to be a great challenge for a young Monarch team. With only one senior, the squad faced a tough schedule including Division I UNC-W and Dixie Conference foes UNC-G and Averett. The season added valuable experience through playing time for the underclassmen and should make the spring of '88 a great season for Monarch tennis.

Coach Austin shows frustration as another inning ends without a score.

1987 saw the Monarchs post a 40-12 record, the second best in the school's history. Two losses to NC Wesleyan (5-8, 4-5), cost the Monarchs a piece of the Conference Championship. Included in those 40 wins were victories over Division I schools — Coastal Carolina, St. Bonaventure and Radford. Rollins College also fell to the Monarchs. Impressive wins over Salisbury State, Ferrum, Virginia Wesleyan twice and Flagler aided the Monarchs to the top ten national ranking, with a final ranking of 8th. The team strength lies in its defense and offense where the Monarchs can start a lineup with all starters hitting over .300. Danny Hartline hit .384 while setting school Marks for homers (17) and RBI's (80). Second baseman Jansen Evans (.394) led the team in triples (11) while Mike Brewington hit .358 with 14 doubles. Other players who hit over .300 are Stan Mozingo (.323), Scott Aswad (.390), Joe Corretjer (.319), and Paul Currie (.323). The pitching staff had six starters with 44 or more wins, led by Chuck Baxley (8-4) and Richard Seagroves (7-3). The other four starters were Scott Aswad (5-2), James Reynolds (4-1), Rodney Jones (5-0) and Mitch Adams (4-0). Danny Tester (3-1), has come on strong in the last third of the season to be an excellent middle reliever and freshman Steve Belawski set a school mark of 22 appearances in short relief. The 40-12 year lifted Coach Austin's Career mark at Methodist to 260-91. Coach Austin's aggressive Baseball coaching led to over 309 stolen bases following last year's NCAA record mark of 334.

Goofing off...

The student union is a great place to goof off. The "rush hour" (10 am to 11 am) is when one will find various activities, conversations and personalities. Hanging out in the union has become one of the most popular campus life activities not only here at Methodist, but at colleges and universities all over the U.S.

... in the student union

... in the snack bar and bookstore

The snack bar is big enough to hold great entertainment yet small enough to allow the feelings of closeness and unity among students to fill everyone. If one hasn't experienced a snack bar event, then he surely has missed out on an important part of campus life.

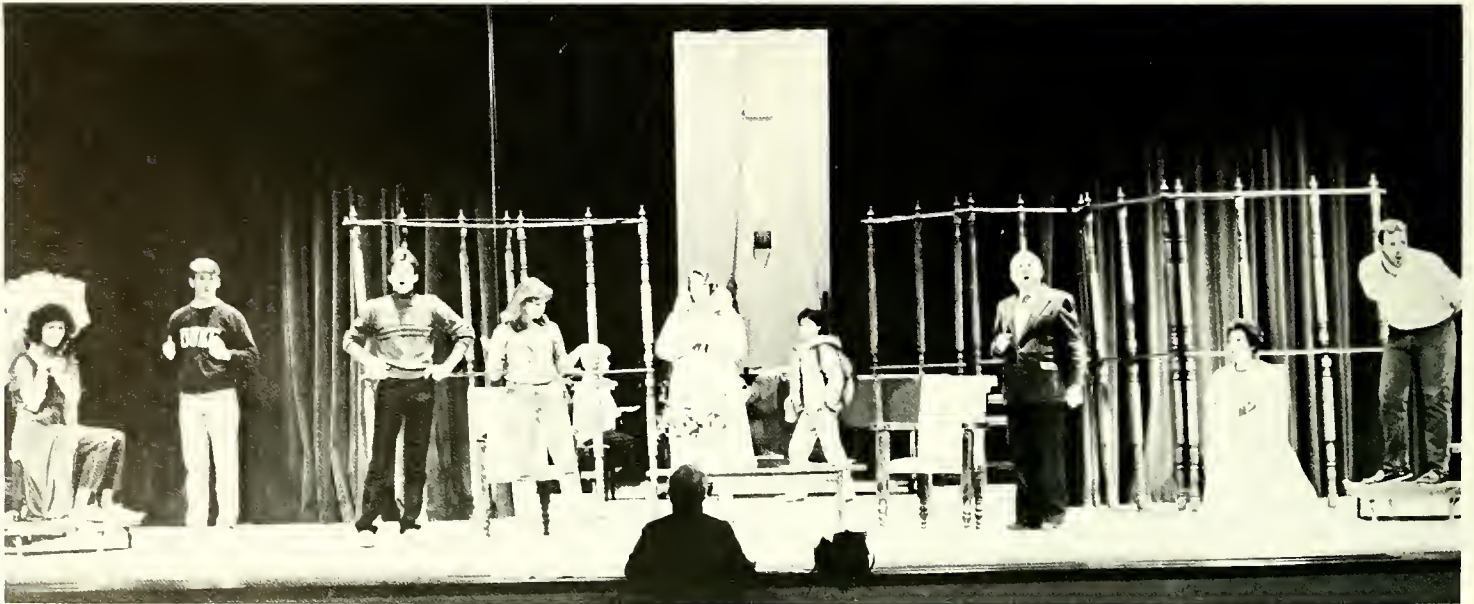

The bookstore personnel have always been friendly and helpful. The personalities and wits of the staff and work-study students can only attract compliments.

Methodist's Hartline Signs With Baltimore

By MICHAEL FUTCH
Staff Sports Writer

Methodist College outfielder Danny Hartline, an NCAA Division III first-team All-American the past two seasons, signed a one-year minor-league contract Wednesday with the Baltimore Orioles.

HARTLINE

Hartline, a 21-year-old from Laurel Hill, was selected in the 23rd round of the major league free agent draft last week, according to Fred Uhlman, Orioles director of scouting.

Hartline said he will report to Miami, Fla., today to begin training at an Orioles mini-camp. Uhlman said Hartline will later be assigned either to Newark, N.J., of the New York-Penn League or Bluefield, W.Va., of the Appalachian League. Both are rookie leagues that open later this month. Teams in the leagues play 70-game schedules.

Hartline and Uhlman would not disclose contract terms.

Hartline, who holds numerous records at Methodist, had one year of collegiate eligibility remaining.

"It was kind of a 50-50 thing," he said of making the decision between turning professional or remaining at the Fayetteville school, a national Division III powerhouse during the 1980s under coach Tom Austin. "It was kind of tough. I decided to go ahead and do it. I could possibly have had a better year. And I could have had a worse year. I'm happy with the decision I made."

Hartline, the first baseball player drafted during Austin's eight-year Methodist tenure, batted .384 last season, third-best on the Monarchs. He set school season records of 17 home runs, 80 runs batted in and 74 runs scored. In three years at Methodist, Hartline batted a cumulative .382 and established career school records in home runs (27), RBIs (183), runs scored (190) and triples (16).

"How do you replace this kind of offense?" said Austin, whose 1987 club ended the season with a 7-3 loss to Dixie Conference rival N.C. Wesleyan in the South Regional championship game. "Danny had so many dimensions: he could run the ball down in the outfield, steal bases, hit the home run, get the extra-base hit, drive in runs. But someone will take over his production."

Hartline, who played center field for Methodist the last two seasons, said that before he was contacted Friday morning, he was beginning to wonder if he had been drafted.

"I just look forward to getting in any organization," Hartline said. "I didn't care who drafted me. ... I think my chances are good. If I keep my head straight and work hard, I'll be up there (major leagues) soon."

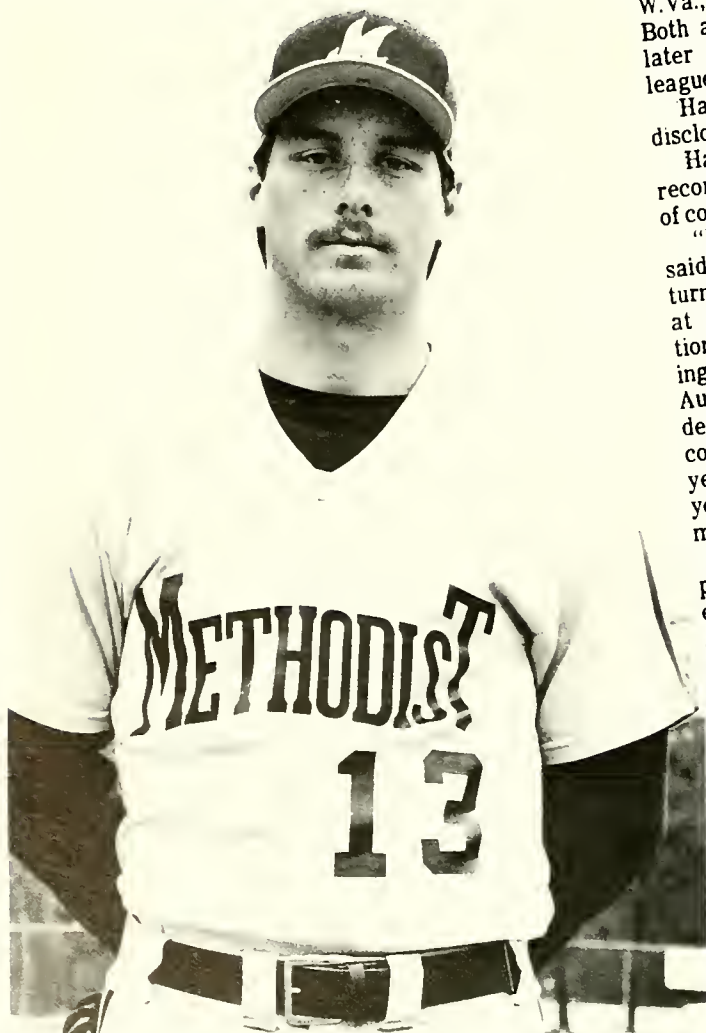

Uhlman said Jim Gilbert, a club scout who signed Hartline, reported the outfielder as "having average running speed and a little below-average arm. Jim Gilbert apparently saw something in him. The ability must be there — that's the reason he was drafted. It's up to the player himself" as to whether he'll make the major league level.

At Scotland High School in Laurinburg, Hartline helped lead the Scots to three straight Southeastern 4-A Conference championships from 1982-84. He played third base.

And his statistics proved his talent on the collegiate level.

But his college coach would not ponder on Hartline's chances of making the majors.

"That's really speculative," said Austin, whose 1986 team advanced to the Division III World Series. "Danny's an awfully good athlete. He's a strong runner. He loves the game. He's going to have to work hard."

COMMENCEMENT

Mr. Bruce Pulliam (below) also spoke at graduation. Mr. Pulliam will not be with Methodist as he is retiring. He will missed.

Commencement ceremonies were held May 10. After the processional which was "Land of Hope and Glory," Reverend William Green, Campus minister, began the ceremony with an invocation.

Dr. H. Elton Hendricks (top left) then spoke and introduced the speaker, Mary Lynn Bryan, Methodist's first Historian-in-Residence.

Mary Lynn Bryan (bottom left) easily acquired and maintained possession of everyone's attention with her address. She spoke with expression and with words from the heart. For about twenty minutes Mary Lynn made it easy for us to feel as if we were "her children."

After the address was the commissioning of the United States Army Officers (above).

Dr. Kendrick presented an honorary doctor of humanities degree to John Kenney (left), president of the NC Association of Independent Colleges and Universities.

Cu Phung (below) was the recipient of the Lucius Stacy Weaver Award.

(top) Koods were not always cooperative, especially if one's sponsor was a little shorter than the graduate.

Cynthia Clagett (middle) graduated with the highest grade point average of the graduating class. Dr. Todd Woerner, who hooded Cynthia, follows her off stage.

Forrest Shaw and family (right) show their pride for the 4-year accomplishment and its recipient.

Autographs

Dear Methodist,
 Yes, another annual has come to an end.
 This is my chance to thank contributors, to give credit, to list staff members and to "spill my guts" to you, the understanding and hopefully impressed annual owner.

I feel that this annual is an improvement compared to the last. With a little more writing and graphics this time around, the annual seems less like a photo album. Another contributing factor is the increase of staff members. I am truly grateful for their help.

I apologize for not including any information on photographs you may have hoped to see, but for all, I could only work with what I had. My special thanks goes to Bill Billings, News Bureau Director, for always accomodating me with numerous photographs and information. Knowing what it takes to produce an annual, he has been most understanding and willing to go out of his way to acquire any materials I may have needed.

I truly hope you enjoyed this annual.
 Sincerely,
 Marie Dexter
